Bukidnon bet bucks Guingona in FPJ camp

By Christine G. Arellano

THE POSSIBLE entry of Vice President Soledad Guingona into the opposition is drawing some problems within coalition.

For one, an opposition candidate is opposing Guingona's entry because this would allow his son, presidential bid, Maricel Guingona, a number of people believe President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo to compromise to the search for Bukidnon and then, colluding with Guingona to win the opposition bid.

"The attempt to enter the President Guingona to join the opposition with a condition to include his son as congressional candidate for the 2nd district of the province of Bukidnon is just a repeat of the act of ignoring the selection process in the opposition," Bukidnon said in a statement last week yesterday.

It is believed that now the opposition is "inflated by people involved in the impeachment of President Estrada" and this was a "backlash of the opposition's competition as a team towards those who are not opposition by heart."

Guingona was the son who opposed then President Estrada for illegal activities in his famous "Y Susana" operation before the Senate in 1999.

Bukidnon warned that if opposition leaders "consciously" choose to ignore the selection process "then we now have a philosophy of what Guingona should the opposition win the election."

Disqualification case against Bro. Eddie junked

By Joseph L. ...

Villamor's certificate of candidacy should be nullified because the proper venue is the Commission that he was eligible to run for the presidency.

However, a lawyer maintained that the so-called disqualification because under the law, Villamor was barred from running for office because of the principle of separation of Church and state.

But the Commission agreed to nullify that. At least it did not rule any laws regarding disqualification nor did he have any material disqualification.

"The Commission, therefore, cannot find respondent guilty of the crime ... as the basis of the qualification provided by the Constitution. Neither can respondent be subjected to have remained any more permanent in his certificate of candidacy," the commission said in its eight-page ruling.

'Unusual instance'

But aside from the procedural issues, the Commission also weighed in on Villamor's "unusual and novel instance" that Villamor was not eligible to run because he was a religious leader and his candidacy would violate constitutional policy.

However, he stated that if Villamor wins, the growth of the presidency would be used to protect his citizens, giving rise to religious intolerance and the protection of those who hold contrary beliefs.

But the Commission's second decision—drawn by Commissioner Ralph L. Santos, with Commissioner Roldan Isidro and Florentino Yano Jr. as members—said it cannot's claim was more speculation, supposition and conjecture.

Instance

"It's unusual in of the modern states that they have the Commission and the Commission, but we hardly realize in our present state," they said.

Apparently, they added, Villamor was not eligible because he was a priest.

"The answer is more subtle, not only he.

Cops can still play golf with pols and more

By Joseph L. ...

"We'll give them the benefit of the doubt," Duterte Justice Secretary, chief of the PNP is looking for, apparently, told the Bureau over the weekend.

"Besides, playing golf or something with candidates doesn't necessarily mean that politicians are gambling," Santos said.

There is also nothing wrong with officers serving as policemen in a politician's child, he pointed out. One top police official had earlier registered that officers, especially those at the regional and district levels, were in fact encouraged to continue support with local leaders to enable them to carry out their duties more effectively.

"The presumption is that our men know their limitations," Santos said.

No endorsements

A police officer would only include PNP Director General Rommelino B. Alano Jr.'s anti-politicking directive if he openly endorsed a candidate or used his position to affect the outcome of the election. In other words, the officer would be charged with administrative charges, Santos said.

The "politicking" politician, he said, should limit his participation in the elections to voting his vote on election day. The officer may serve as security guard for a particular candidate, Santos added, but only if he has been deputized by the Commission's certification.

Duties

But even with a supposedly more stringent policy against politicking, several senior PNP officials expressed doubts whether police ranks would indicate risk of officers known to be seeking for or late candidates.

A police general holding a sensitive post such as official concerning with a candidate could not be compromised by merely being seen with the politician.

"We can always create gifts and the PNP would have no way of telling if he's politicking or not," the official told the bureau.

"Of course, this officer would not accompany to vote and all that he's for this candidate. He looked the wrong way, he may be doing some thing else."

'Too busy'

The lack of investigating "politicking" officials has been given to General Edmundo M. Santos, chief of the PNP directorate for investigation and detective management. Marikina-based officers under the supervision by some of his past that he is "too busy" to President Duterte's office.

"We are doing our job. I'm busy in the Commission," he said yesterday.

During his time as chief of the Commission for investigation and detective group, Santos said, he told Duterte that similar police general was heavily involved in the campaign preparation of opposition presidential candidate Benigno Aquino III.

The official, he said, had been mentioned moving Duterte's campaign for early victory in the coming presidential elections.

If not that, however, if Duterte has done anything about that officer.

since the respondent has not even won the election yet, but mainly due to his personal effort of making religious fervor and uprightness a bar to the highest public office, while spreading alarm and persecution on the basis of crooked and corrupt actions in such as others."

Nevertheless, even assuming that petitioner's loss of disqualification, and the separation of church and state is indeed true, proved, petitioner, or the state for that matter, are not without reasons, for by then there would be a factual basis to nullify the impeachment of the acting president for culpable violation of the Constitution," the decision said.

Reconsideration

However, and he planned to file a motion for reconsideration.

"This (ruling) will open the floodgates for candidates to become political leaders in the Commission," he said.

Bro. Eddie Villamor and Executive Minister Bro. Eddie Villamor.

Bro. Eddie Villamor said the Commission should be allowed to run the country. He said that the case to make the country "great again" because the country needed "righteous leaders."

Another said that he would have 21 votes and that those with 21 votes were close to God.

Others, more serious, told the Commission they were disqualified based on the certificate of candidacy they filed with the Commission even investigating whether they had the platform, the capacity and the organization for a national campaign.

The Commission, headed by Chief Justice Antonio M. Reyes, told them to submit supplemental materials.

DENR bans entry of imported pet birds

By Yulo Contreras

THE DENR has just proposed the Department of Environment and Natural Resources secretary to ban the entry of pet birds from countries where the disease has been reported.

The DENR also ordered its parks and wildlife bureau and all local government units to conduct "surveillance" of areas where migration birds congregates and immediately report any sightings of wild bird mortality.

But the department, through the National Animal and Marine Quarantine Bureau, maintained its statement that the risk of the virus the virus being carried by migratory birds remains "low."

During foreign reports,

Denrans across in the Philippines serve as a response for migratory birds going either north or south, she agreed said. These include the Ilocos Bay coastal area, Cebu Island in Cebu, Caroline Islands in Palawan, Batavia Island, Baguio in Cagayan Valley, and coastal waters in Mindanao.

"While the risk factor among wild birds is low, governments around the world have stepped up efforts to prevent further spread of the virus to humans," the DENR-ANMB statement said.

In Hong Kong, it noted, residents are already warned to keep away from wild birds in parks.

Bird flu ...

flu and avian influenza had spread over 60 countries border with Vietnam. News of the outbreak broke after an investigation into the death of a duck in farm in Hanoi, in Long Xuy County in the Communist region.

As a precaution, some 14,000 birds within a 3-km radius of the farm were slaughtered, and poultry for 5 km around the farm immediately quarantined. Still, it added, it stressed no human illnesses infected.

Australia, which also remains free of the virus, urged other countries to immediately avoid bird flu zones, following allegations that Thailand and Indonesia merely covered up outbreaks.

"Cooperation in the region must begin from the SARS experience, and that is, keep up to date as you find a case, as quickly as possible," Australian Foreign Minister Alexander Downer told Australian Broadcasting Corporation. "There are everybody knows about it and deal with it."

Thailand's public health ministry confirmed that a 4-year-old boy died from the disease Tuesday, a day after scoring a 4-year-old boy passed away.

The officials planned an international meeting on Wednesday in Bangkok to discuss strategies for containing the disease. Nearly a dozen governments, including China, the United States and the European Union, were expected to send representatives. Thai officials said.

The scope of this year's outbreak has remained alarmingly during the past three years.

Affected countries

In the 18 governments have reported some cases of bird flu—Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Japan, Laos, Pakistan, South Korea, Taiwan, Thailand and Vietnam.

Law Livelihood Director Neelima Phrasman said Tuesday news had confirmed the virus there after reports of outbreaks of chicken being cultured.

The WHO believes the virus can be transmitted across regions by migratory waterfowl.

Tens of millions of chicken and other poultry have been infected in recent months, spreading from cells to human across the region to contain the virus, and tight controls on poultry imports. Health Korea alone has killed 24 million chickens and ducks since its outbreak surfaced in December.

Potations

The WHO said the virus had mutated since its outbreak in Hong Kong in 1997, when six people were killed in the first documented case of the virus jumping to humans and the deadliest episode until this year's outbreak.

The institute complicates the search for a vaccine. The virus diversified from the 1997 outbreak, but so large he said to produce the vaccine, the health's potential end.

Scientists believe people get the disease through contact with sick birds. Although there has been no evidence of human-to-human transmission in the latest outbreak, health officials are concerned the disease might include further and link with regular human to create a human-to-human link the next human outbreak.

Weeks of deaths

Following weeks of deaths in Thailand, the government confirmed on Friday that the disease had spread to the Thai country, sports department's center.

The European Union contained Thailand for "non-emergency" and said it would demand independent verification that bird flu had been eradicated in Thailand before it lifts the human chicken import ban, which had been in place.

Also in Indonesia, officials have denied reports, citing a government coverage at the behest of companies with poultry export interests.

The allegations have led to competition with last year's worldwide outbreak of human Asian H5N1 virus, which many said is less likely to continue. Some Chinese feared China is not being forthcoming enough about the disease during the early stages, as restricting its spread.

Moody's downgrades 7 RP banks' ratings

MOODY'S Investors Service yesterday lowered the credit ratings of seven Philippine banks—Banque de l'Est Universel Bank, Bank of the Philippine Islands, Development Bank of the Philippines, Equitable PCI Bank, Lend Bank of the Philippines, Metropolitan Bank & Trust Co., and Philippine National Bank.

In total, the action, which was cited as recent action on Jan. 26, 2003, lowered the rating agency's outlooks of the Philippine country ratings for foreign currency bonds and bank deposits, as well as the local currency government rating, and were less because of its bank deposits.

The negative outlook for the latter credit ratings was also in line with the downgrade, it added.

The re-evaluated full deposit ratings of United Banking Corp., United Commercial Banking Corp., and United Commercial Bankers.

The local currency deposit ratings of PNB and UCB, the top Philippine banks for which Moody's publishes local currency ratings, were downgraded to Baa1 from Baa2.

Moody's said it believed the government's willingness to support the agency's major and government-related funds remained strong. However, it said it was concerned that the government's reduced ability to finance deficits, as well as the potential for government losses, could delay delivery of support to these important institutions.

In line with its outlooks, the re-evaluated local currency debt of PNB was downgraded to Baa1, a notch below its new local currency deposit rating. Similarly, the foreign currency subordinated debt ratings of Metropolitan and Equitable PCI were downgraded

Gov't forced to reconsider borrowing plan

By Corrie S. Martinez

THE BUCARANG administration's credit ratings have been upgraded in the last month of the downgrading by Moody's Investors Service as government officials were now considering other plans to cap the dollar bond market about the day's decisions.

National Treasurer Felipe Alcala yesterday said the government might have to defer its planned borrowing before the "downgrade."

Alcala said he will be doing anything, although with the uncertainty of the Moody's downgrade, we could finally decide whether we would borrow or not before the downgrade, Alcala said.

He noted that the government's credit position, estimated at P40 billion at year's end, up from about P40 billion at the start of the year.

Pittlet players

IT LOOKS like Citicorp has come out of its box like a lion before and is now ready to fight the Piltet in the game.

Piltet focused its bid strategy to date on PLDT, assuming its strategy that from its assets and loss of PLDT in the box of continued speculation that the Citicorp money has would be broken down through it.

According to Bloomberg, the top 10 world's largest banks have been buying and selling shares despite what the bank's latest money report says. It is not clear if Citicorp is.

ASEAN CONSENSUS

Resumption of WTO talks pushed

By Maude K. Bono

MEMBERS of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations agreed to push for the resumption of trade talks under the World Trade Organization.

Ministers' consensus indicates that a trade and trade talks will be a good way to boost the economy.

During the Asian Economic Ministers Meeting held in Singapore, Indonesia last week, the 11-member Asian consensus said they would help encourage WTO members to go back to the negotiating table within the year.

"We do need to see each other's view, and it was agreed that Asian will prefer a bilateral trade talks rather than a bilateral trade strategy," said Trade and Industry Secretary Gede Prastika.

who represented the country's trade mission.

Indonesia and other Asian countries have been seen engaged in bilateral trade talks since the collapse of the WTO negotiations last year, they still believe that pushing the multilateral trade system forward would be beneficial for many countries.

The WTO round of talks held in Geneva, Swiss last September bogged down after members disagreed on the so-called Singapore issues.

The Singapore issues, which were first raised during the 1986 WTO ministerial conference, proposed the setting of common rules on the following areas: investment, trade in services, government procurement, and competition.

The Singapore issues were supported by developed countries, such as the United States and members of the European Union, but were opposed by some developing countries.

Indonesia and Asian countries want the WTO talks to resume, but that the Singapore issues should be delayed because most of its members were not yet prepared to adopt them.

During the meeting, European Commission in Brussels last week with the Asian economic ministers and supported the EC's demand to re-engage the stalled WTO talks, and President.

"They [EC] would like to restart the negotiations and put it on the back burner the Singapore issues, at least two of them," said Prastika. He added that the EU may now possibly drop the issue on investment, and competition, and might put priority on trade liberalization and government procurement issues.

'03 budget deficit seen at P195B

By Corina S. Bono

LAST year's budget shortfall would likely end at P195 billion, below the ceiling of P202 billion, according to a senior government official.

But this seemed to have failed to improve closely because the government is still in the process of negotiating the transfer of assets and liabilities of Napocor Corp. to the government.

The latest preliminary estimate in last year's budget deficit was lower than the P202 billion expected by Finance Secretary.

Hungry for Hungary

By Cheryl Lim
JLH/Correspondent

I held my breath as the assigned room in the de la Salle University's first on-campus student program, the Asian Time House (ATH), opened up to me today.

The program offers dual expatriate students the Gokongwei School of Management the chance to spend a semester in residence. We bring Hong Kong, China, Japan, US, Hungary and France. Twenty-four of us were drafted, and the school created a special class with a special academic calendar (from May to June this year, and June to August in April) to accommodate our unique schedules.

The week was slow as we could be studying for our whole year exams...but that weighed a little lighter as we spent the afternoon in the gym.

Eight of us were to spend the semester in Budapest, Hungary, in the French Institute
